President's Message

Going through a copy of Canadian Stamp News I had set aside a few months ago, I was reminded by reading one of the articles of how lucky we are as First Issues collectors, along with dead countries collectors, of not having to deal with new issues. The author compiled some interesting statistics regarding the volume of new issues by 59 different countries and discussed the impact it might have on the hobby. For example my country, Canada, issued 297 stamps between 1851 and 1950 and 2507 since 1950! For the United States the situation is similar with 997 stamps up to 1950 and 4038 since then. The worst offender though is Great Britain with 280 stamps up to 1950 and 7972 since! The author correctly pointed out that this rise is mainly directed to the topical collectors market but does little to help the classic/country collectors market. Beside First Issues I also have a Canada collection that I started as a kid but these days I buy the minimum required to keep it up to date.

Meanwhile, the demand for quality classic items remains high as was already discussed by Tim Balm in his comment regarding the Beville collection (V25N4). Two other recent examples caught my interest. A mint set of the Province of Canada first issue was offered by an Ottawa-based firm in September 2017. Sc#1a sold for $66,000, Sc#2b for $54,000 and Sc#3 for a whopping $285,000 (CDN dollars, before commission). Another auction house based in the USA offered in March 2018 a mint copy with OG of Sc#31, 1¢ red-brown on laid paper from the first issue of the Dominion of Canada printed in 1868 (less than 10 mint copies known), it sold for US$42,500. I will never own any of these rarities but I am glad to see that some lucky people appreciate them enough to pay big money for the privilege of taking care of them for a while.

[Editor: Mr. Laflamme provided a scan of Canada Sc#31, but due to lack of space it is not shown.]

First Issue of Fiji

By Louis Laflamme, FICC #210

Fiji consists of a group of more than 300 islands (110 inhabited) located in the south Pacific 1900 miles northeast of Sydney, Australia. It is situated on the international dateline which was deviated so that the date would be the same for all islands. At the time of its first issue, Fiji was a British protectorate (1870-1874) after which it became a full Crown Colony until independence in 1970. The local newspaper the Fiji Times (still published today) was established in September 1869 and the publisher, G. L. Griffiths, was soon confronted with the fact that the existing consular post office, which had offered limited service since 1858, was too unreliable to be used for the distribution of the newspaper throughout the territory. He then decided in November 1870 to establish his own delivery system, the Fiji Times Express. Along with the newspapers, he offered the population the opportunity to use his services for mail distribution. A total of 14 district branches came to be established with the main one being located in Levuka where the newspaper offices were located. The rates adopted were published in the October 22, 1870 edition of the newspaper and were as follows:

- From Levuka to any part of the world: 3d
- From Districts to any part of the world: 6d
- From Levuka to Districts: 6d
- From Districts to Levuka: 6d
- From one District to another: 9d
- Newspapers: Levuka 1d
- Newspapers: to or from Districts 2d
- Fiji Times : free

In December 1870, 2 new rates to New Zealand were created: 6d from Levuka and 9d from districts.

The first stamps were issued on November 1, 1870. A plate of 24 stamps containing all four denominations (1d, 3d, 6d and 1sh) was prepared and arranged in the following way:

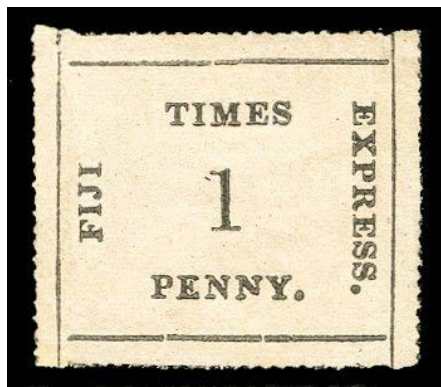

6d	6d	6d	6d	6d	6d
1sh	1sh	1sh	1sh	1sh	1sh
1 d	1d	1d	1d	1d	1d
3d	3d	3d	3d	3d	3d

The stamps were printed on a characteristic quadrille paper with a watermark consisting of small squares. The design is quite simple and only contains the denomination along with the words Fiji Times Express. The vertical lines of the frame are continuous and are 22.5 mm apart. The horizontal lines are a little thicker, do not touch the vertical lines and are 18.5 mm apart. The stamps come in shades of rose ranging from pale rose to bright rose and are imperforate. Dotted guide lines separate the stamps (Sc#1, 200%, at right). It is estimated that 600 stamps of each value were printed. They are numbered Sc#1(1d), #2(3d), #3(6d) and #5(1sh).

First Stamps of Fiji (continued from page 3)

In late 1871 a second printing was made. Because the demand was great for the 9d rate, three 3d subjects in plate positions 22-23-24 were replaced by a new 9d stamp. This second printing of stamps of the same design can be distinguished from the first issue as they were printed on two different types of pseudo laid papers (Sc#6, 200%, at left).

The experience was short lived. In January 1872 the government ordered the Fiji Times Express to cease operations. A government postmaster was appointed and an official postal service established.

All the stamps of both issues are rare and rarely offered for sale so it is not surprising that on two occasions in 1876 and 1888 the owners of the newspaper, at the request of collectors, produced official reprints of the rare stamps to fill album spaces. These reprints made with papers different from the originals pose no great difficulties if you are familiar with what the real stamps should look like. At least five types of forgeries of these stamps are also known to exist and again can be easily spotted if you know the characteristics of the real stamps.

[Editor – Comment 1: I was curious why the first set of stamps were numbered 1, 2, 3, and 5 by Scott. One might presume this is because the Scott Catalogue editors believed the 9p stamp added in the second printing also existed for the original printing. I looked in both my 1957 and 1933 editions of the Scott Catalogue and the 1, 2, 3, 5 numbering is consistent back until at least 1933. If anyone has a substantiated explanation for this numbering anomaly, I would be thankful to receive it.]

[Editor – Comment 2: This story is extremely similar to the printings of Samoa's first stamps – the Samoa Express issue. The article in First Issues V16N4 says that G.L.Griffiths owned the newspaper in Fiji and wanted to start a newspaper in Samoa. So, he developed a similar postal service in Samoa based on his experience in Fiji.]

Revised Azerbaijan Sc#1-10

By Tim Balm, FICC #91

The 2019 edition of Scott's Postage Stamp Catalogues have now been issued for A-B countries. I had read in Linn's Stamp News (Nov, 2017 edition) that Azerbaijan Sc#1-10 would be "updated". Previously, the #1-10 set referred to the stamps printed on greyish paper. A footnote following the listing stated that these stamps were also printed on white paper with a catalogue value of 5x the value shown for the greyish paper.

Scott now lists the #1-10 set as specific to the stamps printed on white paper and issued in 1919. Stamps printed on the greyish paper are now listed as #1A-10A and issued in 1920.

If you want to have a #1 in your collection (versus a #1A), then be sure your stamp is the white paper variety.

[Editor: This differentiation of paper colors also occurs with the Cook Islands Sc#1-4 versus #5-8. Further, although the Scott Catalogues only footnote the existence of Norfolk Sc#1-4 on both regular and “white” papers (the white paper matching that of Sc#23-24), the editor believes it is only a matter of time before these Norfolk “white paper” stamps are also given numbers.]

New Annam & Tonkin Sc#4

For your information... If you are a collector of entire first issue sets, Scott has added a listing for Annam & Tonkin #4 to its 1919 catalogue. The stamp is described as “5c on 2c brown“ with a hefty value of $8,500.00 mint (no value given for used).

“On two different occasions, Denmark overprinted its stamps for postal use in the Faroe Islands. The Faroe Islands are a self-governing kingdom of Denmark. The 18 islands are located in the North Atlantic, 200 miles north-northwest of Great Britain.

“The first attempt at a Faroe Islands stamp was made in 1919, when a Danish stamp with a hand stamped surcharge was released (shown at right, 150%).

“Then, stamps for the Faroe Islands vanished for 21 years. Following the outbreak of World War II, 5 Danish stamps were surcharged and issued during the British administration of the islands (shown at left, 150%). _____

“In April 1941, Great Britain moved quickly to Islands. Before he became Prime Minister, and still of the Admiralty, Winston Churchill told Great Commons that the Faroe Islands would be occupied.

“After 1941, Faroe stamps disappeared a second time, and were not seen again
 “Today, the islands are quiet. International affairs are channeled through
